

Pablo Tobías

After graduating from the ECAM (Escuela Cinematográfica y Audiovisual de la Comunidad de Madrid) with a degree in Screenwriting, Pablo Tobías began to work on the Spanish series 'Amar en tiempos revueltos', in which he played different roles as a screenwriter until he moved on to 'Amar es para siempre', in whose first season he participated.

He has lived in New York, where he wrote an independent feature film adapting Calderón de la Barca's 'La vida es sueño', and has taught screenwriting classes. "El corazón del bambú" is his first novel.
